GUN COTTON BOMB IS SENT BY MAIL TO CAPT. O'REILLY

Infernal Machine Which Might Have Blown Up Police Station Sent to Captain in Brooklyn, but His Suspicions Prevent Explosion.

Police Captain Miles O'Reilly received a bomb through the mails today which, had it been opened before it was examined, would have blown up the Ralph Avenue Police Station, in Brooklyn, and probably killed many in the building.

The box came in the morning mail, at a time when Capt. O'Reilly was giving orders to the outgoing patrolmen. The box was tossed aside, the Captain thinking it was a present of a box of cigars from some friend. Later the box was taken back to the Captain's private room. It was ad-

"Mr. Miles O'Reilly, Captain of the 54th Police Precinct, Ralph avenue and Quincy street, Brooklyn." The box was addressed by typewriter, but on the corner was written in ink: "Compliments of D. Anschell."

The package was inclosed in ordinary manila paper, neatly tied. After the paper had been taken off, Capt. O'Reflip saw that the internal revenue stamp had not been tampered with—that it was whole, but that the bottom of the box had been removed, as was shown by nails larger than shose in the other

Captain Was Suspicious.

Capt. O'Reilly became suspicious called in Detective John Law. "I don't know what this means," said he Captain, "but somehow I am sus-latious about this box. No man of my acquaintance is named D. Ansehell. You don't think at can be a bomb. do you?"

"There are no cigars in it." he

"Don't shake that Dirk too hard," warned the Captalm. "It might explode."

Loaded with Gun Cotton.

Law opened the box from the bottom, handling it with great care. When the bottom was looseed it was discovered that the box was loaded with guncotton, spinkled over generously with prowder. Arranged under the lid of the box were four pair or matches wild have exploded had the top been raised instead of the bottom. The lighted matches would have eaused the powder to ignite and then the guncotton would have exploded.
